About Me

I am a multimedia specialist and interactive designer focused on creating engaging and meaningful digital experiences across learning design, UI/UX, interactive media, animation, and creative technology. My work combines visual storytelling, interaction design, multimedia production, and digital systems to develop experiences that are both functional and emotionally engaging.

My background spans 6 years of experience along multimedia production, interactive design, web experiences, animation, and creative development across educational, artistic, and commercial contexts. I am particularly interested in projects that explore interaction, engagement, emotional design, and meaningful digital experiences through emerging technologies and multimedia systems.
